Time: 9:30am – 3:00pm

Barrier islands and sand dunes provide critical habitat and storm protection to communities throughout coastal Louisiana. Please join us for a planting on the dunes of Grand Isle State Park in Grand Isle, LA. Efforts will involve planting native species on the beachside dunes that help to protect Grand Isle and communities further inland from the damaging effects of hurricane storm surge. All planting equipment (gloves, shovels, dibbles, etc.) will be provided. Volunteers should dress for the warm beach weather and bring a change of clothes. Lunch and drinks will be provided to all volunteers.
